

555

A black and white photograph of an archaeological site. The floor is composed of irregularly shaped stones of various sizes, some of which are arranged in a pattern. A scale bar is visible in the upper right corner, and a small white card with the number '555' is placed on the floor. The surrounding walls are made of rough, textured material, possibly plaster or mud-brick. The overall scene suggests an excavation of an ancient structure.

555

506

