A black and white photograph of an archaeological site. The scene shows several stone walls and foundations. A vertical scale bar with alternating black and white segments is positioned on the left side. Two white rectangular markers with black numbers are placed on the ground: '502' is on the left, and '621' is in the center. The ground is composed of dirt and scattered stones. In the background, more stone structures and a small marker with the number '2570' are visible.

502

621

648

640

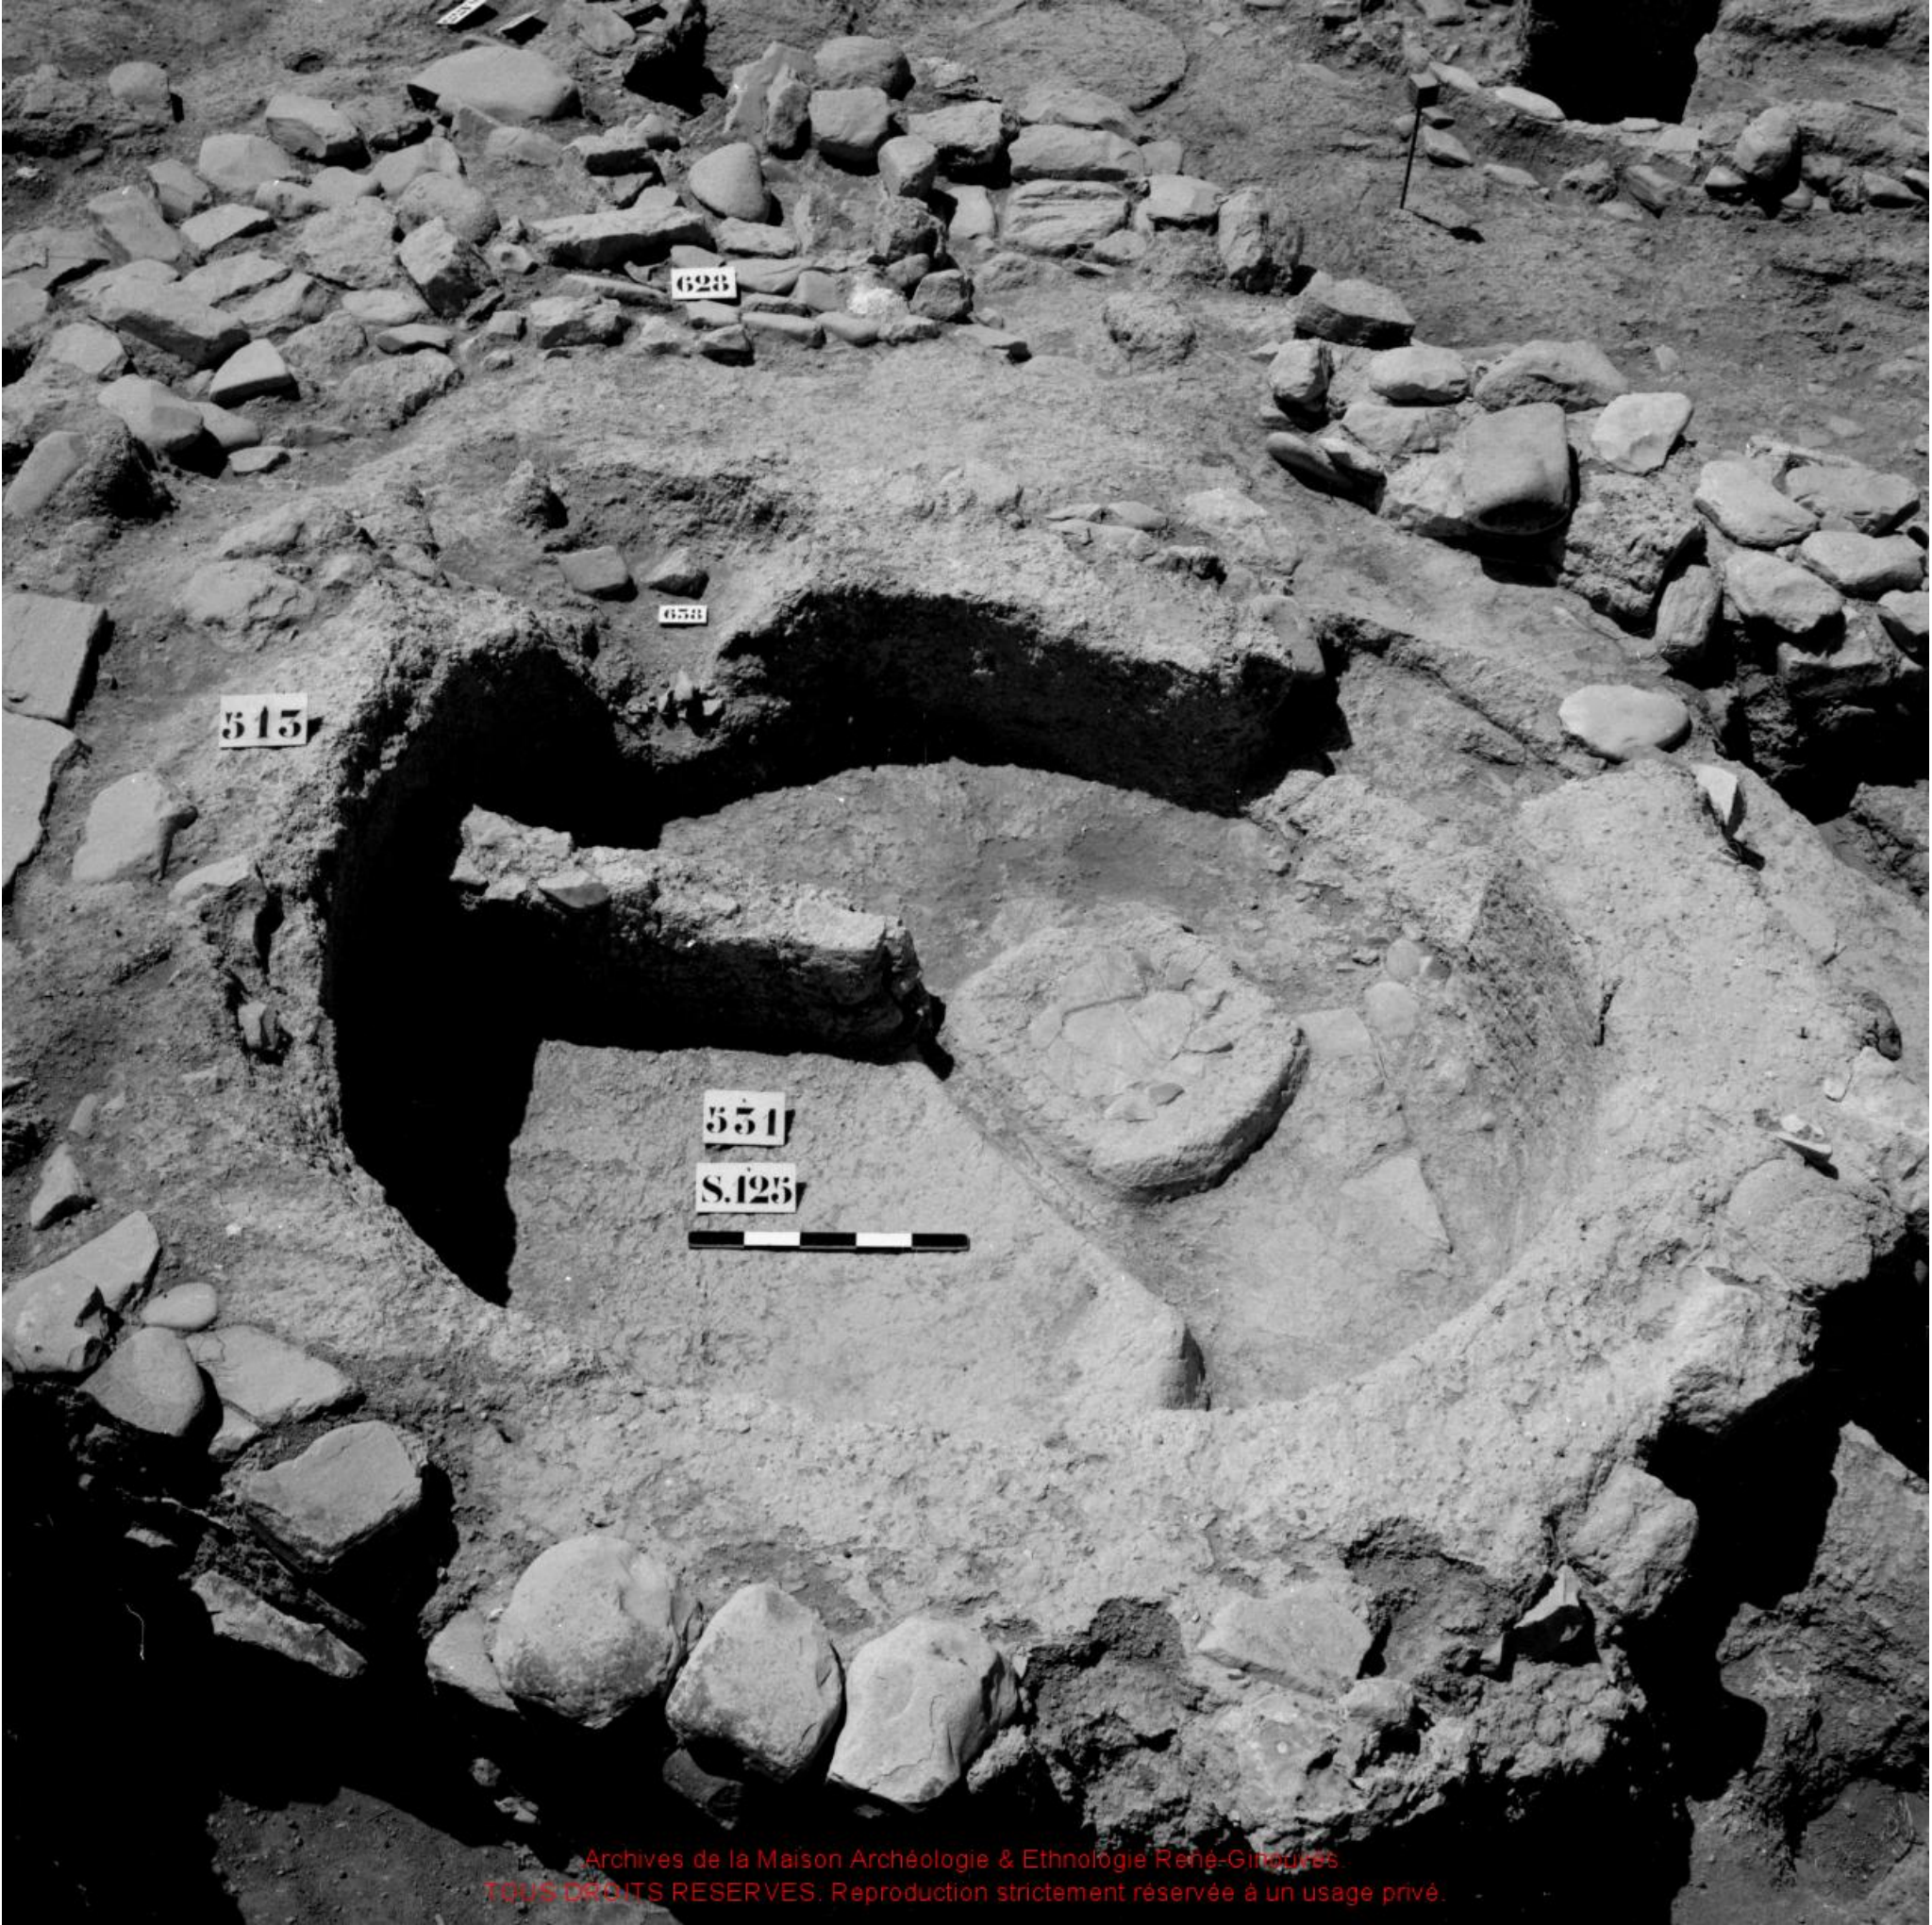

S.155

640
S.155

658

S.126

621

