

485

S.122

S.122

485

The image shows a close-up of an archaeological site. The ground is composed of dark, textured earth with some small, light-colored stones or debris scattered throughout. On the right side, there is a vertical scale bar with alternating red and white segments. Below the scale bar, there are two white rectangular labels with black text. The top label contains the number '647' and the bottom label contains 'S.122'. The lighting is somewhat uneven, with a shadow cast across the top left portion of the site.

647

S.122